The thermometers were strategically placed near the sensor. Although funded by Hammacher Schlemmer, the Institute operates independently of Hammacher Schlemmer. Each projection clock rated for its Accuracy, Ease of Use, and Features. The Institute forwards its recommendation to Hammacher Schlemmer's buyers so they can procure the product for The Hammacher Schlemmer catalog, web site, and retail store. The Institute tested all of the functions such as setting time, date, alarms, etc. For temperature, the Institute put the sensor in an area within range of the base unit. Temperatures were captured on both the thermometers and the base unit multiple times over the testing period. They responded that Accuracy is by far their most important concern, followed by Ease of Use and Features. Prior to testing, the Institute eliminated from consideration any models that did not have a required attribute or feature or if it had an obvious quality issue.
